Wins For 'Bonnie and Clyde' Film

by Stephen Holt

A year ago this month Estelle Parsons was making peanut butter commercials. Last week she won her first Academy Award.

She was named Best Supporting Actress for her portrayal of Blanche, the hysterical sister-in-law in "Bonnie and Clyde." It was her first film, but Estelle Parsons was no "overnight success."

Seventeen years of hard work on New York's stages and television preceded her winning the Oscar.

Miss Parsons greeted me backstage after her arduous performance in the title role of Tennessee Williams' new

Dr. King's Murder Results In Anger, Some Progress

by Richard Anthony
College Press Service

At colleges and universities around the country, the day of Dr. Martin Luther King's funeral was marked with memorial services, vigils and sympathy marches.

All classes were cancelled at a large number of schools while at others classes were called off for part of the day in Dr. King's memory. In Chicago, Washington, and New York, almost all major colleges and universities cancelled classes entirely, although it was not always at the initiative of their administrations. At the Washington Square campus of New York University, for example, students held a demonstration to get classes called off.

Thousands of students traveled to Atlanta to attend the funeral ceremony for Dr. King. One black student at the University of California's Santa Barbara campus flew to Atlanta for the funeral. At some southern schools, including Clemson University in South Carolina and Vanderbilt University in Tennessee, interracial groups of students made the trip to Atlanta.

Complaints Presented

Students on some campuses chose the day of the funeral as a time to work for the redress of long-standing grievances. At the University of Michigan, for example, a group of more than 100 black students blockaded the doors to the administration building and presented a list of grievances to the president.

Among the demands of the students were, the establishment of a scholarship fund in honor of Dr. King; the endowment of a chair on the faculty for a black professor; and the placing of black representatives on the university's athletic and admissions staffs. President Robben W. Fleming, after a meeting with the students, announced that he felt their demands were "legitimate," after which the students ended the blockade.

At Stanford University about 75 black students took over a colloquium at which the school's president and provost were speaking and presented 75 demands, including efforts to increase the number of members of minority groups among Stanford students and employees. On Tuesday the university administration announced a meeting at which they agreed to all but one of student demands, the firing of Vice Provost Robert Rosenzweig and his replacement with a black person.

At many schools, longer-

National CORE Director, James Farmer, To Speak

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), will deliver a talk on "The Why's of Riots" tonight in the Ballroom at 8. His talk is sponsored by Student Lecture Series.

Mr. Farmer is recognized as an articulate spokesman in the struggle for racial equality. In many of the emerging nations throughout the world, he is one of the best known Americans.

He helped form CORE at the University of Chicago in 1942. Since that time, Mr. Farmer has been involved with the social economic and cultural problems of America's Negro population.

Mr. Farmer was born in Texas and received a B.S. in chemistry from Wiley College when he was 18-year-old. He studied for the ministry at Howard University's School of Religion, earning a bachelor of divinity at 21-years-old.

Mr. Farmer declined ordination and began a career in social action as race relations secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation. Later he was active in Union Movements in the United States, helping to organize the South for the Up-holders' International Union.

He was also International Representative of the State, County and Municipal Union and served as a member of a five-man delegation from the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions to 15 African nations.

Senate Is Lacking Financial Records

by Brad Johnson

The Student Senate has the authority to either spend:

- a) $110,000
- b) $47,000
- c) $25,000

The answer, according to Julie Lepper, chairman of the Student Tax Committee, is "I don't really know."

However, for the fall semester last year, the committee and the Senate approved allocations to 25 organizations. The total granted was $73,240.

For this semester, (just over) $46,000 was voted to 22 organizations, according to tax committee records.

Where does the money come from? How much is given to the Senate? Are the expenditures of the organizations which receive funds checked?

Miss Lepper, even as tax committee chairman, acknowledges she has trouble answering these questions. She cites these reasons:

1. the job of distributing money to campus organizations is so vast, no student has the time to do the job as it should be done.

2. a new computer system used by the university has several severe limitations.

"It should be a full time job," Miss Lepper said of dispersing funds, "if it is to be done correctly and discreetly."

For example, under the new computer system, the total amount of money available to

James Declines To Comment On Appointment

Acting President Dr. F. Don James today announced his appointment as president to Central Connecticut State College in New Britain. He will replace Dr. Herbert T. Welte who is retiring July 1 of this year. However on Monday night he had refused to comment on this appointment.

Tax Chairman Wants Athletics Off Budget

One of Miss Lepper's major criticisms of the tax allocation system is having athletic clubs supported by the Senate, rather than the athletic department.

"If we could get these out of the budget," she said, "there would be so much more money for other organizations."

According to tax committee records, this was the amount allocated this year:

Crew club.....	$3,192
Judo club.....	$305
Rugby.....	$140
Ski team.....	$1,521
Skin divers.....	$800
Yacht club.....	$2,115
Lacrosse.....	$1,100
TOTAL.....	$9,177

Miss Lepper said since these groups are athletic, the athletic department should sponsor them and not the Student Senate.

One reason, she said, was that these teams sometimes serve as training grounds for the varsity teams. She cited the yacht club, which she said has trained freshmen for the varsity sailing team.

In exchange for this service, she said, the athletic department has allowed the yacht club to use two boats.

She praised the yacht club's "Learn to Sail" program and said she wished more money could be given to the club.

Here is an example of a budget as it is filed with the tax committee. This is for the All Nations Club as the club filed it.

1. newsletter.....	$50
2. International supper.....	$50
3. speakers.....	$75
4. postage and duplicating supply.....	$100
5. Governor's reception.....	$50
6. Coffee hour (3).....	$75
7. Sports activities.....	$20
8. International ball.....	$400

the Student Senate cannot be determined until all student semester bills are paid in full, Miss Lepper said.

"At the start of the year I go over to the registrar's office and get an idea of how many students are registered and then make a rough calculation of how much money I have to work with," she said.

"We just hope we don't go over the budget," she added.

The money which is distributed to campus organizations comes from sharing the $45 student activity fee with the athletic department.

Miss Lepper outlined the procedure her committee follows to allocate the money.

At the start of each semester, budget forms are sent to campus organizations. After the organizations make their requests, the committee reviews them and often asks additional information from the organization.

A simple majority vote of the five-member committee decides action on a request. Committee recommendations come before the full Senate for a final vote.

All appropriations are then subject to the review of Dr. John F. Quinn, vice president for student affairs. He has veto power over Senate action on a request.

Miss Lepper said Dr. Quinn makes his disapprovals known, but seldom vetoes Senate action.

In addition to recommending a full time administrator, Miss Lepper would like to have money placed in a savings account to earn interest.

Because of the volume of work, the tax committee often does not check the financial records of the organizations. No formal accounting is required either, Miss Lepper said.

Therefore, organizations could be spending money on unbudgeted items contrary to Senate rules, Miss Lepper said.

Because some organizations function in the spring and early fall, their budget requests in the second semester include money to finance operations in the fall.

During the summer, according to Miss Lepper, this money remains in the university account and does not earn interest.

"It could be making money for the students if they (the administration) would put this money into a savings account," she said.

According to the tax committee records, the club requested $802.10. They were granted $800.

These groups were voted funds this semester:

The Arts Council spring request is still in doubt. They were given $11,800 last fall.

Backstage

by Dave Conte

"Sergeant Musgrave's Dance," by John Arden is the second University Theatre production of this semester. It will be staged May 3, 4, 5, and 10, 11, and 12 in Quinn Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

The play is expected to have much appeal on campus because of its contemporary and timely "antiwar" theme.

The plot deals with four one time soldiers, now deserters, who have come to a northern 19th Century mining town in England to preach, at gunpoint, non-violence, and the gospel of peace. Because of a strike in the town the workers and owners have uses for the new contingency of soldiers, but, needless to say, for different ends. Thus, the clash of opposing views leads to widespread violence and in the end, nearly all succumb, yet the system, or establishment, which breeds such disease lives on.

Trustees Authorize New Ph. D. Program

The Board of Trustees of State Colleges authorized April 10 a doctor of philosophy program in psychology at URI. It is the first doctorate program at URI outside of the physical sciences.

It will be the first service-trained Ph.D.-level school in the state according to Dr. F. Don James, acting president. The program is scheduled to go into effect in September. Two additional professors will be needed in 1969 and four more by 1977.

The program was recommended by Dr. F. Don James and Dr. Stanley I. Berger, chairman of the psychology department.

In other action, the Board accepted the resignation of Thornton N. McClure, vice president for business affairs.

The Board also reported that its auditors have been authorized to continue the investigation of the embezzlement of some $34,000 from URI accounts.

The Board also endorsed the establishment of a university in South Providence called the "Martin Luther King Center of Higher Education." The school would not operate on a grading system. Full scholarships would be awarded to Negro and other minority students which would aid both the stu-

All three of the state's institutions of higher learning are to provide full scholarships to about 50 Negro students from the state, the Board decided.

Entertainment on Campus Discussed By Senate

The Student Senate meeting Monday was highlighted by two guest speakers. Robert McCurdy, program director of the University of Hartford spoke about Live Entertainment on Campus. Roger Conway, assistant director of student activities, continued this discussion as it applies to URI. Both outlined the pitfalls that should be avoided in contracting talent. Mr. Conway said that the university will probably have a full-time co-ordinator for Major Events on cam-

All Nations Club To Select Aides

The All Nations Club will meet next Tuesday to present nominees for club officers according to Theodore A. Suddard, international student adviser.

Deadline for submitting names to the nominating committee is tomorrow. Those not nominated must obtain the signatures of 10 voters to be put on the May 14 election ballot.

Members who have attended four meetings including next Tuesday's are eligible to vote.

LBJ's Withdrawal Causes Few Student Objections

by Phil Semas

College Press Service

WASHINGTON (CPS) — Students around the country reacted with jubilation to President Johnson's announcement that he would not seek another term as President.

But beneath the jubilation there was an undercurrent of suspicion of Johnson's motives, especially among politically aware students. A CPS survey of about 20 large campuses also showed a slight feeling of sympathy for the President and a good deal of confusion, especially in the West.

There were spontaneous demonstrations on several campuses and in several large cities.

In Washington, about 150-200 people danced and sang in Lafayette Park, across the street from the White House. About 20 policemen patrolled in front of the White House and three persons were arrested for refusing to move on when told to.

In Boston about 3,000 people, most of them Boston University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology students marched from Harvard Square to the steps of the statehouse at about 2 a.m. Monday. They held a rally with speeches, chanting, and singing on the steps of the state house. Michael Ferber, one of the five men indicted for counseling draft resistance, spoke.

In Philadelphia about 1,000 University of Pennsylvania students marched to Independence Hall singing "God Bless America."

In Chicago a couple of groups of about 150 students roamed the streets. One group on the University of Chicago campus sang "ding, dong, the witch is dead."

At Yale University about 200 students gathered to sing the "Star Spangled Banner" and then marched off to the home of Chaplain William Sloane Coffin, shouting "Coffin for president." Coffin did not appear to speak, however, and the students went away chanting, "McCarthy, McCarthy" and "hey, hey, LBJ, why didn't you quit before today?"

In Ann Arbor, Mich., beer and wine sales increased tenfold.

Student press reaction was also wide-ranging. The University of Michigan Daily in a front page editorial said Johnson's withdrawal "should not obscure the historic significance of his drastic administration" and called on his successor to make major changes in U.S. policy. The Yale Daily News said "we enthusiastically endorse LBJ's non-candidacy." Some college editors, such as those at the UCLA daily Bruin, said they might find it easier to endorse Minnesota Senator Eugene McCarthy now, since it is no longer necessary to stop Johnson.

Johnson will remain on the ballot of Choice '68, the presidential primary being held on 1,400 college campuses April 24. The directors of the project, which is funded by Time, Inc., took Michigan Governor George Romney off the ballot when he withdrew from the race in February. But the ballots were already printed when Johnson made his announcement. Vice President Hubert Humphrey, who is being mentioned as a likely candidate, is not on the Choice ballot, and those who want him will have to write in his name.

For example, observers in California thought Johnson's withdrawal might help the Peace and Freedom Movement there. The PFM has been fighting an effort to get its members to re-register as Democrats to vote for Kennedy or McCarthy in order to defeat Johnson. The PFM put out a statement saying that now Johnson is stopped, opponents of the war should remain in the PFM.

And Lee Webb, one of the organizers of the counter-convention planned for Chicago at the time of the Democratic Convention, said Johnson's withdrawal would keep the Left from supporting McCarthy and Kennedy as much as they have and that it would also allow the campaign to focus on the issues, instead of Johnson's personality. He doubted that it would hurt the Left's plans at the convention.

But Ray Mungo, editor of Liberation News Service in Washington and another planner of activities for the convention, said, "It makes our job harder. We have to persuade people that everything is still the same."

Group Formed On Anti-Racism

A Student Committee against Racism is being formed. The first meeting will be held tomorrow at 6:30 in Rm. 118, Union.

URI Netmen Top Coast Guard, 8-1

The URI tennis team successfully opened its 1968 campaign by defeating Coast Guard Academy, 8-1, at Kingston last week.

Andy Yosinoff, Bob Woods,

Tom Sherman, Irwin Shorr, and Fred Brown won singles matches for the Rams.

The Rho'cy netmen resume play today in a home match against Springfield.

An Open Letter

Dear Fellow Students,

As you know, I am running for the Presidency of the URI Student Senate. This is an office that demands a person who has experience within the Senate, an academic record that will allow him to meet the rigors of the office, and the desire to do the work that must be done.

Although I have not had the opportunity to meet many of you personally, I have been working for you in the Senate for the past two years, one of them being in the position of Student Affairs Chairman. Through my bills, and the support of the Senate, Transfer students no longer have a 2.0 included in the cumulative average. Fraternity men who are on athletic scholarship can now live in their Fraternity houses without a 3.0 cum., residence halls have been detrippeized where possible, and the Student to Student Scholarship program was inaugurated.

This past Monday evening I introduced a bill that would create a Bookstore Price Control Board. This Board will prevent the Bookstore from making another $29,179.37 CLEAR PROFIT at our expense as they did last year. I also intend to have the Senate work on the creation of a Student Wage Union that will secure a respectable minimum wage for you. Those students who work here at URI, work because they need money, and for no other reason.

Chancellor Dennis has said that many Student Governments have become "SHADOW GOVERNMENTS". I hope that you will agree with me that if we are to be an effective student government we must not squat under the shadow of the Administration Building but stand up and voice our views in the open. There is no reason why the lighting on campus should be so poor; there is no reason why we shouldn't have a fulltime doctor; there is no reason why there shouldn't be an ambulance on campus; there is no reason why there should not be X-Ray Facilities at URI.

To make sure that these essential programs are carried out, and they are all within reach, I would appreciate your vote in the Presidential Election this Thursday and Friday. My record speaks for itself. When you cast your ballot, please remember this letter and the work that I have done for you.

Thank You.

In another longer-term project in memory of Dr. King, students at Carleton have asked permission to spend part of the coming semester canvassing and organizing whites in Minneapolis to combat racism. About 15 students are expected to take part in the project, for which they will be granted academic credit.

Several schools have established scholarships in memory of Dr. King. At Vanderbilt University and at the University of Georgia, the scholarships will go to any student, black or white, who pursues the goals of Dr. King, and makes use of his techniques.

Student Support

At least three separate groups have been formed by white students at the University of California at Santa Barbara to support the demands of black people, and to try to convince members of the white community that action must be taken in the ghettos.

The newly-formed Afro-

American Association at the University of Alabama presented a list of questions to University President Frank Rose on the day of the funeral. Among their questions were the following: Why are there no black professors at Alabama? Why no black athletes? And why no black campus police officers?

At Harvard University, the Afro-American Society drew up a statement that was printed on the front page of the Harvard newspaper the day of the funeral. It said that Dr. King has "contributed much to the struggle of black people in this country against racism and exploitation," but added that it was more important to "advance the liberation movement of black people in this country" than to mourn Dr. King.

At the close of their statement, after noting that Harvard had only two courses on Africa and that it has no tenured black professors, they said, "Harvard is indeed a microcosm of American Society. There is no place for the black man at Harvard."

Letters to the Editor

Reader Alarmed, Angered By Dr. Baum's Comments

Dear Sir:

Having read the articles concerning the opinions of newly appointed URI president, Dr. Werner A. Baum, I and many of my friends have become alarmed and angered.

This anger and alarm stems from the fact that Dr. Baum said that URI "should build its science programs," the reason being, he continues, that URI began as a technical school and therefore has more development in the science area. If this is so then it logically follows that Dr. Baum should concentrate on building the liberal arts programs.

Apparently, however, Dr. Baum does not think that students in liberal arts need a program as well developed as science majors. In reference to student apathy he says that liberal arts majors have more involvement in campus issues than pre-professional students. With this he implies that no student in liberal arts can be a pre-professional!

"The pre-professional is concerned with making a good academic record (the liberal arts major isn't?) because he knows he cannot get into graduate school without it." With this last statement Dr.

Baum delivers the crowning insult to liberal arts majors: not only does he imply that only "pre-professionals" intend to go to graduate school, but that liberal arts students are too stupid to realize that they need grades to follow graduate studies and thus go on their merry way of pursuing extra-curricular activities!

Add to this the fact that Dr. Baum is currently Deputy Administrator of the Environmental Science Service Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce, and from all this one can infer that Dr. Baum will have a definite tendency to intensify the science curricula while the liberal arts programs stagnate. He declares that he wants to "put teeth in URI diplomas," but in whose diplomas? Certainly not those graduating from a liberal arts curriculum. The liberal arts majors of U.R.I. have reason to become extremely alarmed, for not only will this mean that our remaining years of study at URI may be less meaningful because of a lack of normal progression in improvement, but that our degrees when we graduate will have less significance to prospective employers.

Thankful For Dean's Interest

Dear Sir:

It is not often on this campus that the occasion occurs when a member of the administration of this University shows enough interest to go beyond his assigned duties of his office.

But in this case the students of 1 North Butterfield would like to express their gratitude to Assistant Dean of Students Donald D. Smith for his interest in the betterment of the students.

This is in reference to Dean Smith's informal visit to 1 North on the night of April 4. The Dean and the students had an informative discussion about student, faculty, and University policies.

We would like to express our appreciation once again for this warm interest. And it would be nice if such policies would occur more often on this campus in the near future.

Beacon's Plight Seen As Pitiful

Dear Sir:

It seems to me to be a pity that the Beacon is dependent upon "others" for its money. Each time I pick up a paper, it never fails, I'm always disappointed. It shuns controversial subjects or else it writes them up in a very poor light. Its articles on controversial subjects fall short of expressing the full importance of these topics.

If the paper was not dependent on "others" for its income. Rather, to put it another way, if it wasn't blackmailed by "others" upon whom it depends for its support, it would probably be a much better paper!

Of course the fact that this blackmailing does exist is proven by the classic Schlitz beer ad last semester.

There is talk of apathy at URI. This isn't apathy—its oppression!

There are figuratively stone walls like this all over the

One never reads what the independents are doing. An outsider is lead to believe that there are none at U.R.I. Why doesn't the BEACON designate one person from each dorm to report news? I'm sure the housing units are doing something of interest.

Will The BEACON remain oblivious to students' suggestions for the remainder of the year?

Defends Keaney's Staff

Dear Sir:

I am writing this letter in defense of the staff in the equipment room at Keaney Gym. In the face of that viciously malicious letter to the editor in the last edition of the BEACON concerning the management of the facilities in the gym, I felt almost compelled to attack the perpetrator of this fantastic hoax. He seemed to think that the gym should be available to those who pay for its upkeep through tuitions and taxes. Come on now!!

The job in the equipment room is a hazardous one. For those who were not informed of last year's tragedy, the fourth member of the staff died... of boredom. It takes at least three men to hand out socks and sneakers to the members of the athletic teams and any of the U.R.I. faculty who are down there to exercise. It could almost be considered a full-time job. Why should they stop whatever they are not doing to lower a couple of baskets for the students to use? The two-story climb might lead to the death of yet another of this unsung staff. Turning the key to lower the baskets might also end with disastrous results. After all, what could be more culturally stimulating than to go up to the Union and steal a painting? What could be more poetic than to go around writing "Apathy" on the sidewalks and buildings around the campus? (Poetic justice??)

Just sit in your saunas, staff. But don't sweat. The students can't do anything...

EDITORIAL

On Reaction to Dr. King

Dr. Martin Luther King's assassination has touched off a wave of reaction throughout the country.

Congress reacted by speeding passage of a Civil Rights Bill that will extend to all, rights which our constitution granted many years ago.

The ghettos reacted with violence that stems from years of frustration and poverty coupled with a hope for something better.

The Rhode Island Board of Trustees of State Colleges has reacted by establishing an unorthodox college in Providence which will serve Negroes and other minorities. The Board has ordered the state's three institutions of higher learning to make available to Negro students full scholarships.

Major universities around the country reacted by cancelling classes out of respect to the slain civil rights leader. Memorial services, vigils and sympathy marches have been held.

URI reacted by doing nothing.

James Farmer, National director of CORE will be here tonight to speak on riots. His appearance, while not planned as the result of Dr. King's death, is nonetheless an opportunity for this all-white campus to show that it is concerned about the plight of the Negro community and does want to understand that plight.

The action taken by the Board of Trustees last week should help to alleviate the very white conditions at URI. And it is about time.

Interest on Funds

Student Senate tax funds sit idly in the administration office all year long. They could be invested. The interest accrued would be substantial.

The administration should be able to figure out a way that this money can be invested. It could provide student organizations with more money and could work so as to avoid any future tax increase.

This letter was brought on by what I considered the poor-ness of Wednesday April thirds paper (which came out on Tuesday). You probably won't print this letter. Why should you print it? It may hurt the feeling of the "others" upon whom you are dependent.

You talk—no one listens; you don't talk—you're apathe-tic.

Says Charges Are Not True

Dear Sir:

I feel that it is my obligation to inform the students at URI that various rumors about Howard Kilberg, candidate for the Presidency of the Student Senate, are false. At no time did he or anyone of his supporters come down to Delta Delta Delta Sorority to have a sister who was working for another candidate desisterized. The allegations that he made vicious attacks on that same person are also false. I hope that this will clear up any doubts that students may have about Howie's integrity.

fore she left for Hollywood to win the Oscar, but when I spoke to her she wasn't sure at all she was going to.

"You'd be surprised at the amount of Studio politics that goes on," she said. "This studio gets this many Oscars and that studio gets that many."

Miss Parsons did not do any active campaigning for the award as many actresses do. "I'm going to win for my performance or I'm not going to win at all," she said.

And she did win. Already the Oscar has started to change her life. "The Seven Descents of Myrtle" which was on the verge of closing, has now had its run extended indefinitely and Miss Parsons' asking price for films is expected to triple.

Estelle hails from Marblehead, Mass. and started acting there in a community theater at the age of four.

She earned a B.A. in Political Science at Connecticut College for Women in New London, passing through Kings- ton many times on her journeys from college to her home and back.

Miss Parsons expressed a great deal of interest in the recent URI production of "Mrs. Dally Has a Lover" for it was in the title role of this play that she made her "serious" acting debut Off-Broadway in 1962, and won a Theatre World Award for her efforts. "I'd like to do it as a movie," she said, "if I can ever get enough people interested."

Two summers ago she appeared in the Berkshire Theatre Festival production of "Skin of Our Teeth" opposite Anne Bancroft. Arthur Penn directed.

It was the turning point of Estelle Parsons' career for soon after that Penn asked her to be in his film "Bonnie and Clyde" and the rest is history.

"The most important thing," Miss Parsons said, "is to work with people you feel are good for you. I had a hunch that Arthur Penn would be good for me and he was."

"I act off other people. I use what they give me. Some actors work alone. I can't do that. I have to use other people. I don't work well with everybody. If I have an acting problem, I guess that's it, that I don't work as well with everyone. Arthur Penn is the only one who can get Grade A work out of me."

"I enjoyed making 'Bonnie and Clyde' for him. Of course, we never expected it would turn out to be the success that it has."

"I prefer working in films to on stage," Miss Parsons said. "In the movies you just have to be the character, but on stage you have to be larger than life. You have to extend your character out to the audience."

"You have to be an optimist," she said. "You have to have confidence in your work for you never know where the next job is coming from."

That was two days before she won her Oscar.

Developing Nation's Parley Set for Friday, Saturday

The first Conference on the Problems and Prospects of Developing Nation-States will be held Friday and Saturday. Scholars from Harvard University, Georgetown University, Brown University, and the state University of New York at Albany will be attending the Conference.

It is sponsored by the College of Arts and Sciences with the cooperation of the College of Agriculture.

Dr. Samuel DeCalo, chairman of the Conference and asst. professor of political science said the purpose of the conference is to bring these lectures under one roof to discuss the problems of the developing nations of Asia, Africa, and Latin America.

"This way we can see the problems of these nations, why they haven't been solved, and why their progress is slow," Mr. DeCalo said.

Many of the professors will be available to answer questions from students and faculty.

The conference will begin at 9:30 in the Ballroom with opening addresses by Jerome Pollack, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and Dr. DeCalo. A second lecture will be given at 1:30.

Informal discussions will be held from 11 to 12 and 3 to 4 in two Union conference rooms.

The agenda for Saturday, will follow the same schedule. It will be held in the Senate

Chambers.

Abstracts from the speeches of the visiting lecturers will be made available outside the discussion rooms so that they can participate in the discussions even if they missed a lecture.

This year's conference is aimed at the students and faculty of URI, high school teachers in the state, and students and faculty from neighboring colleges and universities. Mr. DeCalo said that if the conference is successful it will become annual.

Mr. DeCalo said that the organization committee will ask other instructors to be lenient if students cut classes because of the importance of the topic of the conference.

Frosh Sailors 2nd to Harvard

The URI freshman sailing team finished second to Harvard in a freshman dinghy-sailing regatta at the Brown Yacht Club last Sunday afternoon.

The Ramlets and Tufts both had 83 points and the same number of first places, but URI had more second places and on that basis was awarded second place in the final standings.

Skip Whyte, Jim Morris, and Dave Ousterhout were the skippers for the URI frosh.

RONALD CICERCHIA, URI junior management major addresses the Society of Advertisement Management (SAM) in Providence. Mr. Cicerchia received an SAM scholarship at the recommendation of Dr. Robert J. Paulis, associate professor of industrial management.

Newport Festival Director Plans Four Night Shows

George Wein, producer of the Newport Jazz Festival, today announced the schedule for the fifteenth annual festival, July 4 through July 7 at Festival Field, Newport.

The opening concert Thursday evening will present Cannonball Adderley, Gary Burton, Nina Simone, Count Basie, and making their first appearance at Newport are Barney Kessel, Jim Hall and the Afro-Cuban Septet of Mongo Santamaria.

Friday, in a program titled "The Schlitz Salute to Big Bands" sponsored by the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Company, the stage at Newport will host the big bands of Dizzy Gillespie, Count Basie, Duke Ellington, Woody Herman, and special guest artists yet to be announced.

On Saturday July 6, Dionne Warwick will make her debut at the Newport Jazz Festival. With her on the program will be Duke Ellington.

Sunday will bring back Ray Charles in a solo afternoon concert. Closing the festival on Sunday evening will be Wes Montgomery, Ramsey Lewis, Horace Silver, Roland Kirk, the big band of Don Ellis, and vocalist Vi Redd. Flip Wilson, comedian, will act as master of ceremonies on Sunday evening along with Father Norman O'Connor.

Afternoon concerts will be held on Friday and Saturday afternoons with Archie Shepp, Elvin Jones, Montego Joe, Tal Farlow, Freddie Hubbard and others to be announced.

Tobin Resigns

At the Bitch-in last Wednesday before vacation, Fred Tobin withdrew from the Student Senate Presidential Campaign. He first spoke of the campaigns he had seen and participated in during the past two years. He said he felt that these were well run, clean campaigns where the issues were brought forth "in a straightforward manner."

However because of what he called an "underhanded, undignified, and dirty campaign this year," and because he did not wish to associate himself with such an "unscrupulous campaign," he said he felt his withdrawal was necessary.

the Senate.

Teach-In Set

A teach-in on the Vietnam War will be held next Monday in the Union Ballroom at 7.

Sachems Says Applications Are Available

Sachems, URI senior honorary society, has announced that applications for juniors are now available at the information desk. There are openings for 15 members depending upon the quality of candidates applying.

The main purpose of Sachems is to confer honor on a representative group of juniors chosen on the basis of their accomplishments and achievements in citizenship, scholarship and extra-curricular activities.

The deadline for applications is Thursday, May 2. New members of Sachems and Blue Key will be announced at the special Honors Day convocation to be held on Wednesday, May 8 at 1 p.m. at the Fine Arts recital hall.

'Road-E-O' Set

The Union Recreation Committee is sponsoring the second annual "Auto Road-E-O" Saturday, April 27.

Individuals and teams of three will be judged according to basic driving skills. It will start at 10 a.m.

Entry forms are available at the Activities Desk. Cars will be supplied by a local dealer.

Ram Oarsmen Victorious

The URI crew club will be aiming for its second straight victory when it takes on Fordham and Manhattan this Saturday at Wordens Pond.

The Ram varsity rowers turned in an impressive performance last Saturday as they scored a two-length win over Clark University in a regatta on Lake Quinsigamond in Worcester, Mass. The Rams rowed the 2,000 meters in 6:50.5, finishing eight seconds ahead of their rivals.

On April 6th at Amherst, Mass, the Rams finished a close second to the UMass oarsmen, and just barely edged out third place St. John's.

Herb Grumpright, Dave Pruden and Don Dauphinee have been the mainstays on the varsity shell, but the other positions are still not settled.

English Prof To Lecture

Dr. Margaret Schlauch, visiting professor of English at the University of Connecticut, will lecture on "The Value of Linguistics for the Student of Literature" at 4 p.m., Friday, April 26, 1968, in the Browning Room.

Professor Schlauch is on leave this year from the University of Warsaw and has also taught at New York University. She has contributed numerous articles to scholarly journals and translated many medieval English, Icelandic, French, Latin, and German works into modern English. In 1966 she was honored with the publication of a festschrift, "Studies in Language and Literature in Honour of Margaret Schlauch," containing essays by scholars of many nations.

Students, faculty members, and others who wish to are invited to attend. Coffee will be served following the lecture.

Debators Finish In Top Sixteen

Lionel Peabody and Shiela O'Malley posted a 4-2 record at George Washington University during the spring break as URI qualified as one of the top 16 teams at a debate tournament.

Their wins came against Western Kentucky, Butler, Texas Tech and Case-Western Reserve.

The affirmative team of Tim DeFee and Kathi Buffum compiled a record of 6-2 winning over Oregon, Manchester, Michigan State, Emory, Muskegon and Oberlin while losing to USC and Florida State.

The negative team of Carol Craghan and Duane Quinn won four and lost four.

picture. "We are a team and it is a heck of a challenge for us," Carmody said.

As for his style of play, Coach Carmody enjoys an aggressive brand of basketball which he hopes to promote at URI. "I like the fast break whenever possible and feasible depending upon the material at hand. I try to apply the personnel to the style of play," Carmody stressed.

"I like pressure defenses, all types and forms. That includes zone and man-to-man pressure, down court, half court and traps," Coach Carmody confided. He also likes the boys to be enthusiastic.

When asked about the scope of his recruiting plans, Coach Carmody said, "we are going to try to get the best players to come to Rhode Island, we don't care where they are."

However, Carmody did say that he plans to concentrate primarily on the New York City, New England States, Long Island, and New Jersey area "because of the concentration of population in the area, and my associations over the last three years."

In a conversation just a few weeks ago between Mr. Zarchen and Coach Carmody, Zarchen asked Carmody, "Tom, when do you want to start recruiting?" Tom's answer: "Right now".

Need more be said?

Ram Sailors 5th In Dinghy Race

The URI sailing team finished fifth in a field of 16 teams which competed for the Boston Dinghy Club Cup in the two-day New England Intersection Regatta which was held on Saturday and Sunday, April 6 and 7.

The regatta was sailed on the Charles River in Cambridge, Mass. in Tech dinghies. The Rams were in first place after the first day's competition with 117 points, and wound up with a two-day total of 227.

The URI skippers during Saturday's activities were Andy Coutu, Manny Read, and Bill Johnson. Coutu sailed all five races in A division. Read sailed the first three in B division and Johnson the last two.

The Rams led the field after the first four races, as Coutu finished 6-2 in A division and Read had 1-2 finishes in B division, but a disqualification hurt URI later on, costing them nine points in one race.

On Sunday, Bill Johnson, Manny Read, Andy Coutu, and Bill Upham were the Ram skippers and Read did the best job, finishing third and first in his two races.

particularly impressed with at least two members of the offensive line.

Likes Drapala, Kelly

Dromgold says that each and every member of the offensive line will have to prove his ability to him and the other coaches in practice before he gets to play in a regular season game, but said that he has especially high hopes for guard Wally Drapala and tackle Ben Kelly.

From what he has seen on the films, Dromgold says that Drapala "barring his head injury, could start for any school in the east right now."

The head injury Dromgold spoke of is a recurring concussion which threatens to keep Drapala from playing next season, Dromgold said though, that the school is going to buy Drapala a special helmet which they hope will allow him to play without fear of reinjuring his head.

Speaking about Kelly, Dromgold said, "If he continues to improve, he can make a lot of money someday." Dromgold said that he thinks Kelly has a tremendous amount of potential and that he will get a shot at pro ball.

When asked to compare the brand of football played at URI to that at BC, Dromgold commented that "On any given Saturday we could hold our own against BC, but week in and week out we couldn't do it."

Dromgold added that at BC, Yankee Conference football is regarded as a step down. He said that BC plays a major football schedule, playing such teams as Syracuse, Penn. St., and Miami.

BC played two Yankee Conference teams last year, Maine and UMass, he said, and defeated both of them.

The primary difference between BC and URI is in their programs, he said.

BC and URI compete for the same players but the program at BC allows them to get more of the quality players than the program at URI, he said.

Big. This year even bigger. Some Chevrolet Tri-Levels are longer. Some wider. Some with more cargo room. Size up Impala. Nothing in its field comes as big. For instance, in many others you wouldn't dare try laying a 4 x 8-foot mirror flat in the main cargo level. (Especially if you're superstitious.) In Impala, no problem. The hidden storage compartment on the lower level also takes more of your gear than any of them. The roof rack you order should take care of the rest. For your comfort, there's extra hip and shoulder room.

We make our Tri-Levels lots more attractive in other ways, too. With such exclusives in Chevrolet's field as an ignition warning system. You'll get a buzz out of it if you ever leave your key in the switch. There are rocker panels that clean themselves with every shower you go through. Inner fenders that protect the outer ones from rust. And hidden windshield wipers on many models. Even with all these advantages, Impala and Chevelle Concours are the lowest priced luxury wagons in their fields. And if that's what you like to hear, hear this. New Hoop Boss Carmody Accepts 'Great Challenge'

By Greg Fiske

Beacon Sports Editor

If first impressions are any indication of the qualifications of a basketball coach, Thomas M. Carmody, freshman coach at Duke University and recently named successor to Ernie Calverley as head basketball coach at URI, would have to rate extremely high on my list.

At a press conference held last Wednesday morning at the Sheraton Biltmore Hotel in Providence, Coach Carmody spoke about his appointment with the poise and grace of an accomplished orator and the enthusiasm and dedication with which all top flight coaches should be endowed.

Coach Carmody said that he was extremely pleased with the appointment and promised to do his best to carry on the traditions of Rhode Island basketball.

"I consider it a great challenge and I will do everything in my power to maintain the high standards of my predecessors at Rhode Island. In my travels around the country, the Rams always have been highly respected and I intend to keep it that way," the 38-year old native of Pittsburgh, Pa., said.

MIXED EMOTIONS

Maurice Zarchen, URI Athletic Director, said that Coach Carmody will assume his new duties on May 1st.

Mr. Zarchen said the Rams were enthusiastic about the hiring of Carmody. "He was selected from about eighty top flight candidates and we were tremendously impressed with his personality and his record both in high school coaching and at Duke. Vic Bubas, Duke coach, gave him the highest possible recommendation," Zarchen said.

Coach Carmody began by saying that he and his lovely wife Mary Frances were coming to URI with mixed emotions, since they were coming from a fine basketball tradition at Duke University under Coach Bubas.

"However, I'm looking forward to the challenge with anticipation and excitement. I hope to bring the knowledge which I have gained at Duke to enrich the basketball at URI and further its reputation," Carmody said.

PRAISES BUBAS

"I am a winner, I enjoy winning and my ultimate objective is to win with ethical means and ethical standards. I want to imbue the people that surround me with this winning spirit," Coach Carmody emphasized.

Coach Carmody is quick to praise Vic Bubas, truly one of the premier basketball coaches in the country today. "I have learned much from Coach Vic Bubas. His program is what we would consider a class program, and I hope that I'm able to give Rhode Island a class program that the whole state will identify with," Carmody said.

According to Carmody's philosophy, the game of basketball begins, endures, and ends with the player. "It is my responsibility to get em, keep em, and coach em, and to motivate and achieve the utmost out of their potential," he said.

"I want to produce a winner. It may take time, but I can guarantee you a team that Rhode Island will identify with," the new coach declared.

FAVORS AGGRESSIVE PLAY

When introducing his wife, Coach Carmody pointed out that at Duke the wives play an important part in recruiting and in the total basketball

Dromgold Impressed With Grid Stars Drapala, Kelly

By Paul Kenyon

"I've played football ever since I was a freshman in high school. It was because of football that I was able to receive an education. Ever since my sophomore year I've wanted to be a football coach—that's all I've ever wanted to be."

Emerson Dromgold

Emerson M. Dromgold, the new offensive line coach at URI, has succeeded. Since that sophomore year in high school, with only one exception, that being while he was in the service, Dromgold has been in some way connected with football.

A native of Boiling Springs, Pa., Dromgold began his career as a fullback for four varsity seasons at Boiling Springs High School. While at Boiling Springs, he also played four years of varsity basketball and four years of varsity baseball. He was a forward on the basketball team and a catcher on the baseball team.

After graduating from high school, Dromgold spent three years in the service, two years of which he was a tackle for the Quantico Marines football team.

When he was discharged in 1956, Dromgold entered the University of Detroit, where he was a starting guard and linebacker for four years, which includes one year on the freshman team and three for the varsity.

After receiving his B. S. from Detroit in 1960, Dromgold spent the next year at Michigan State working as assistant freshman football coach while studying for a Master of Arts degree.

In 1961 Dromgold became the line coach and head baseball coach at Olivet College in Olivet, Michigan. He remained at Olivet until 1965 when he was named line coach at Boston College, where he coached for the past three seasons.

Dromgold became a member of the URI coaching staff in a rather roundabout manner. When Jim Miller, the head coach at BC, resigned at the end of the past season, all of his assistants, including Dromgold, left with him.

Zilly 'very pleased'

At URI, Ram coach Jack Zilly was looking for new offensive and defensive line coaches following the resignations of John O'Leary and Randy Tyson.

While interviewing the former BC defensive line coach under Miller for that same position at URI that coach mentioned Dromgold's name to Zilly. After being interviewed for the position of offensive line coach, Dromgold got the job. The defensive coach didn't.

Coach Zilly is very satisfied with his choice. He says Dromgold came "well recommended and with a good background. He played in a good league and coached in a good league." Zilly added that he is "very pleased that he (Dromgold) has joined us."

Dromgold, who with his massive chest and shoulders looks like a football coach, has yet to see the URI team in action, but by studying all the films of last year's games, is
